TALES OF VILLA MONTEMAR

By Patty Deyling and David Matt Green

Prologue

A long time ago, the countries of Tyruvia and Dandion were having a terrible war. Nearby, in a land called Villa Montemar, there lived a Queen who wanted to put an end to their fighting. Interestingly enough, she got her chance to help when a dragon began terrorizing the two warring lands.

The Queen began by sending messages to the kings of the two countries. "I believe I can show you how to get rid of the dragon that is frightening your kingdom," read each letter. "Come to my castle at high noon tomorrow, bringing with you the wisest person who dwells within your boundaries."

The next day, King Rupert of Tyruvia arrived at Villa Montemar accompanied by a grizzled old man. They were led to the throne room, where they found the Queen talking to a splendidly dressed man and a young boy.

"What is he doing here?" simultaneously demanded King Rupert and the well-dressed man, who happened to be King Humphrey of Dandion.

"Both of you are here for the same reason," replied the Queen calmly. "Your subjects are being intimidated by a dragon and I intend to show you how you can work together to destroy it."

"Work together?" sputtered King Humphrey. "But his country and mine have been at war for as long as anyone can remember!"

"Exactly what did you have in mind?" asked King Rupert suspiciously.

"Each of you has brought along the wisest person in your kingdom," the Queen began. "The two of them must travel with me at sundown to the place where the dragon sleeps. There they will wait with me until the beast awakens and leaves its lair again to terrorize your people. At that time I will tell them what to do next. They must not bring any weapons along, for their combined wisdom is the only thing that will slay the dragon."

Both kings were terribly afraid of the monster, and since they had no better solutions, they reluctantly agreed to the Queen's request. The two kings returned to their own lands, while the Queen set off for the dragon's lair accompanied by the old man and the young boy.

When the trio reached the cave, they hid behind a large rock and waited. Suddenly they heard rumbling noises inside the cavern. The noises grew steadily louder, then a burst of flames shot out of the entrance and two glowing eyes appeared in the dark opening.

The old man and the boy were terrified. They turned to the Queen, crying, "You promised us a plan! How can we slay this fire-breathing dragon without any weapons?"

"It is not yet time to act," the Queen replied. "Wait a moment longer, then you will understand what must be done."

Even before she finished speaking, an astonishing thing happened. Out of the cave came several soldiers from the Queen's army. Some were carrying torches, others had long wooden poles and the last group was pushing a cart that held a huge mask of a dragon's head.

The Queen's companions watched speechlessly as the soldiers propped the mask up with the wooden poles and held the torches behind the fierce head, giving the eyes a fiery glow. Then they began to beat upon their shields with swords, creating a rumbling sound that could be heard for miles around.

"What trickery is this?" cried the old man when he finally found his voice.

"Yes, where is the real dragon?" demanded the boy.

"Can't you see?" said the Queen. "This is the real dragon."

Then it suddenly dawned on the old man. "There never was a real dragon!" he shouted.

"That's it!" exclaimed the boy as he too began to realize the scheme. "You tricked us into working together!"

"Yes," said the Queen, "and if you continue to work together, you could end the silly fighting between your countries."

"How can we stop the war?" asked the man. "We are nothing but a young boy and an old man."

"But your people know of your wisdom," replied the Queen. "Your leaders will listen to you. Go to your kings and tell them you devised a spell and enchanted the dragon. Say that you caused it to fall into a deep sleep, but warn them that the spell will last only as long as peace reigns throughout the lands and no man raises a hand in anger against his neighbor."

"What a clever idea!" said the boy. "That surely will convince them to end the fighting for all time!"

The old man agreed, so he and the boy each eagerly set off for their own countries to tell the good news to their monarchs. The Queen was overjoyed that her plan had succeeded and the fighting soon would end, and she returned happily to Villa Montemar.

Upon receiving the news that the dragon had been defeated, the people in Tyruvia and Dandion were so jubilant that they readily consented to a peace treaty. They soon found that being friends was much better than disliking each other, so they became close allies.

Meanwhile, word of the marvelous spell spread throughout the lands. The great Wizards of the Four Winds, having seen the event in their crystal balls, knew that the Queen of Villa Montemar really was responsible for the wonderful deed, so they decided to reward her.

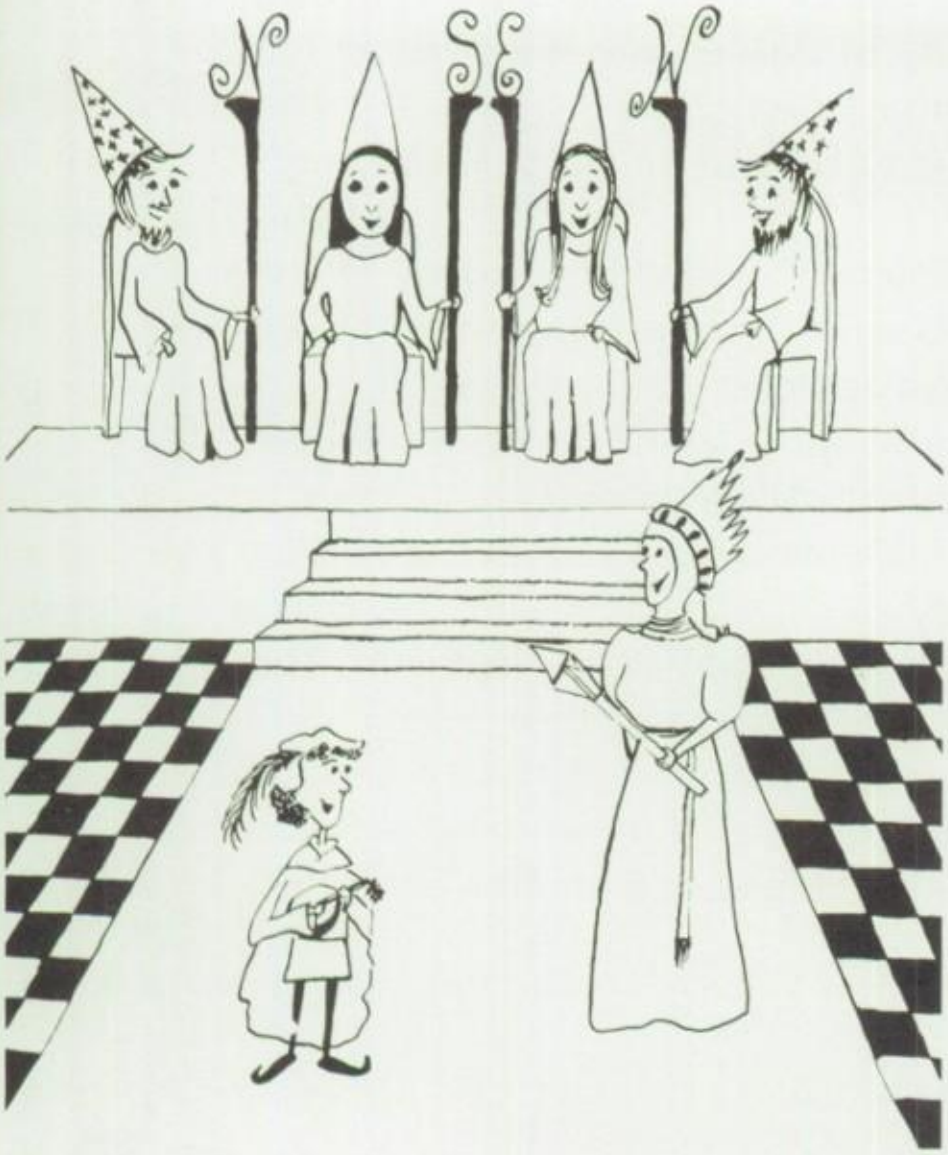
The Wizards came to the Queen's castle, where they each presented her with a gift.

"Because of your great accomplishment," began the Wizard of the North, "I grant you life for a thousand years so that your good works may continue."

"Magic for Villa Montemar is my gift to you," said the Wizard of the South. "Anyone who truly needs help can come to your land and receive it, thanks to the powers you will possess. I am certain you will use them wisely and well."

The Wizard of the East was next to speak. "My present is a golden ring with a very special use," the Wizard said. "Each time you give it away, it will travel from hand to hand until it finds a person who needs the magic of Villa Montemar, then it will lead them here."

Then the fourth Wizard stepped forward. "In order to ensure that the knowledge of your great deed and this magical land will be passed on," said the Wizard of the West, "I give you this servant. Nisbet is his name and he will be your royal minstrel. He will sing of your accomplishments, and by his ballad you will come to be known as Our Lady of Peace. The story will continue to be passed on by Nisbet's children and his children's children so that all generations will know of the good you have done."



The Queen of Villa Montemar thanked the Wizards for everything they had just given her. "I will do my utmost to justify your faith in me," she told them.

All four Wizards smiled at the Queen. "You will do well," said one, and as he spoke, he and the others slowly faded from view.

Many years passed, until it was time for our real story to begin, in the way that all good stories should begin. . .

CHAPTER ONE

A MINSTREL SPREADS HIS SONG

Once upon a time there was a minstrel who traveled through many lands. As he went along he sang a ballad about a legendary place called Villa Montemar.

The story was known to people far and wide. For instance, in one forest glen a poor young girl named Little Red Riding Hood heard it often from her grandmother.

"Let me tell you a story," her grandmother would say, "about a land 'built by a love and devotion loyal'."

Little Red always listened to the story intently, for she knew that Villa Montemar was a magical place and she was entranced by the tales about it.

Not far away, young Princess Snow White heard the same story from her nursemaid, Samantha, who sang to her about the great Queen of Villa Montemar. "Sing once more to Our Lady of Peace, who deserves all our tribute and praise," was part of the nursemaid's song.

"Sing it again, Sam," Snow White would beg, and the nursemaid always smiled and began again.

And in yet another kingdom, little Princess Winnifred learned of the legend from her father's court jester, Giacomo, who would amuse her for hours with his antics and his tales of faraway places.

Her favorite story by far was the one about a land "set on a hill over valley royal," for she knew that was the tale of Villa Montemar.

"Wonderful things can happen there," Giacomo would tell her, and Winnifred dreamed of traveling there someday.

Eventually, as usually happens, the girls grew away from childhood. The stories of Villa Montemar crept deep into the corners of their minds, until they fell asleep in the attics of their memories.

Then one fateful day, by a strange coincidence, all three of the girls found themselves in need of the magic that Villa Montemar had to offer.

Administration

Sister Dolores Anchondo, OLP's principal for the past three years, was joined this year by a new administrative staff. Sister Joyce Hampel came to the school as vice principal and dean of studies, while Teresa Stegman became director of student services, a newly created position which replaced that of ASB moderator.

SISTER DOLORES ANCHONDO

A graduate of Mount St. Mary's College, she has master's degrees in Spanish and eductional administration. In her third year as OLP's principal, Sister Dolores also finds time to teach Spanish 3. When not busy with her many school duties, reading is her favorite form of relaxation. "Mis Amigas!"

SISTER JOYCE HAMPEL

Sister Joyce is in her first year at OLP. Besides being vice principal, dean of studies, and chairperson of the guidance and counseling department, she teaches English 2. A graduate of Alemany High School in Mission Hills and Mount St. Mary's College in Los Angeles, she has a bachelor's degree in English. Sister Joyce enjoys reading and playing the guitar. "My angel said to give you a quiz today!"

All faculty photographs taken by Victor Avila

Members of the guidance department gave valuable advice to students seeking counseling on careers, academics or personal problems. Sister Dolores Marie Gill counseled the freshman class, the sophomore counselor was Sister Ellen Marie Ryan and Joanne Patapow gave advice to the juniors and seniors. As chairperson, Sister Joyce Hampel oversaw the workings of the department members.

Guidance

TERESA STEGMAN

Miss Stegman is in her second year at OLP. She teaches Morality to the freshmen and serves as chairperson of the religion department. Miss Stegman graduated from Lompac High School in Santa Barbara and went to College of Notre Dame in Belmont, Calif., where she received a bachelor's degree in English and a master of arts degree in pastorial theology. She enjoys camping, music, sports and crafts. "Moldy beggar."

JOAN WITZ

A graduate of Dodgeville High School in Wisconsin, Mrs. Witz has a bachelor's degree in religious studies from Edgewood College. She is OLP's director of campus ministry and teaches Marriage, Apostolic Involvement, and Prayer and Celebration. Her hobbies include reading and music. "Back on the farm . . ."

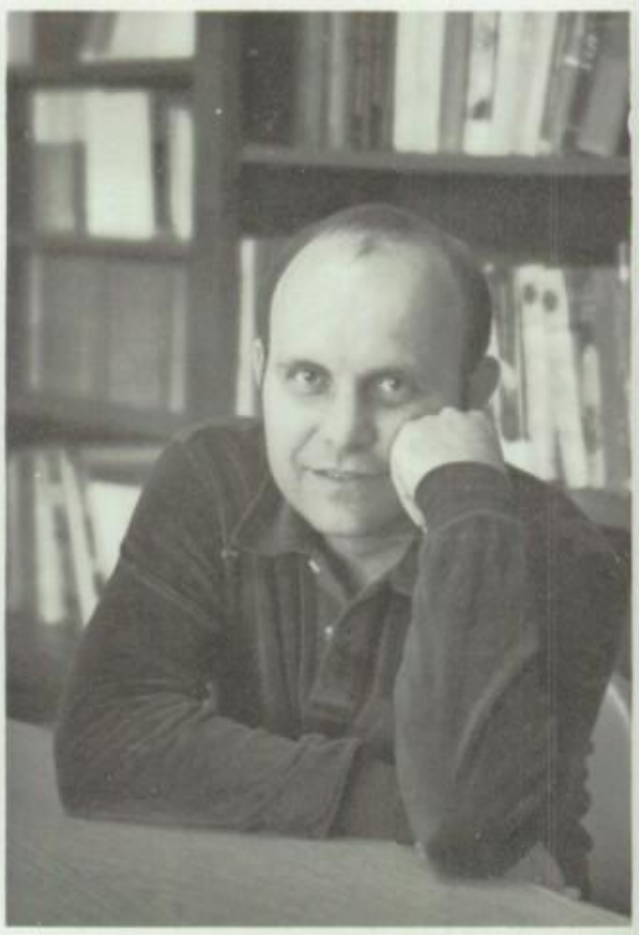
In her fifth year at OLP, she teaches Honors Algebra, Algebra 1 and Algebra 2. She enjoys playing the guitar, singing, aerobic dancing, reading and sports. "Does that make sense?"

DAVID MATT GREEN

In his fourth year at OLP, Mr. Green is the faculty adviser for Villa Montemar and The Oracle. He is a 1967 graduate of St. Augustine and attended San Diego State University, where he received a bachelor's degree in journalism. The yearbook and the newspaper take up most of his time, but he occasionally manages to spend a day browsing in old record and bookstores or an evening watching classic movies at the Ken or the Guild. "Other than that, I like it."



Mathematics

Some improvements were made in the mathematics department this year. One of the offices in St. Cecelia's Hall was converted into a computer room and Sister Ruth Garbani and Sister St. Bernard Johnson taught Computer Literacy classes in the new room. Cathy Goulet and Charles Tucker taught Algebra, Geometry and Trigonometry, while Arnold Schimsky joined the staff to teach Math Analysis.

SISTER MARIANNE JOHNSON

A graduate of St. Mary's Academy in Los Angeles and Mount St. Mary's College, Sister Marianne has bachelor's and master's degrees in history. At OLP for three years, she teaches U.S. History and Western Civilization. She claims her hobbies include orbiting at OLP and traveling planet Earth. "Tough Love!"

She graduated from Bishop McGuinness High School in Oklahoma City and then went to Cal State Northridge to receive a bachelor's degree in English. Mrs. Karstetter's hobbies include unicorn searching and team supporting. "Are you with me?"

THERESA KELLY

A graduate of Montgomery High School in San Diego, Miss Kelly received bachelor's and master's degrees in Spanish Literature from USD. Miss Kelly has been at the Academy for three years and teaches Spanish 1-4. "The bell is going to ring. Let us begin."

Physical Education

The physical education department continued to offer students an opportunity to keep in shape. The returning chairperson of the department, Pauline Carbone, taught Physical Education, Tennis and Run For Your Health. The other department member was Lenae Bourbeau, who taught Physical Education as well as coaching the track team. The volleyball team was led by Shelley McKenney and Leo Willetts coached soccer. Jeremiah Downey directed the cross country runners. Lillian Valdes coached the tennis team.

GRETCHEN MacDONALD

Ms. MacDonald has taught at OLP for five years. She graduated from Dearborn High School in Michigan and then attended Western Michigan University, the University of Detroit and the University of Michigan. She has bachelor's and master's degrees in English. Ms. MacDonald teaches Criminal Justice, American Literature, English 2 and Government. She enjoys reading Harlequin Romances and watching Tom Selleck. "You know, of course."

SISTER CHARLEEN MUNANA

Sister Charleen is a graduate of St. Mary's Academy in Los Angeles and Mount St. Mary's College, where she received a bachelor's degree in social science. She has taught typing for six years. "Less yap, more tap!"

Mr. Tucker graduated from Aquinas Institute in Rochester, N.Y. He attended John Carroll University in Cleveland and the University of Santa Clara. He has been at OLP since 1973. Mr. Tucker teaches Geometry and Trigonometry. His hobbies include collecting antique music boxes and working with computers.

Science

Margaret Wiedower became the science department chairperson this year. She taught Chemistry and Physics. She also moderated the newly formed Science Club, which did a variety of activities such as whale watching and ecology projects. Joining Miss Wiedower in the department was Dolores Gammon, who taught Biology, Anatomy/Physiology and AP Biology.

LILLIAN VALDES

Miss Valdes is in her third year at OLP. She teaches Peace and Social Justice, Western Civilization and Comparative Religions and also is coach of the tennis team. Miss Valdes graduated from Corona del Mar High School and attended UC-Santa Cruz and UC-Santa Barbara. She has a bachelor's degree in religious studies. Miss Valdes enjoys tennis, hiking, dancing and swimming.

SUE ANN WHITE

A 1967 graduate of Rosary High School, Mrs. White earned a bachelor's degree in English and a teaching credential at San Diego State University. In her first year at OLP, she teaches Speech and English 1. Mrs. White enjoys stitchery, creating stained glass windows and reading! "Good morning, ladies."

MARGARET WIEDOWER

Miss Wiedower has been teaching at OLP for seven years. A 1968 graduate of the Academy, she received a bachelor's degree in chemistry and a master's in education from USD. Miss Wiedower teaches Chemistry S, Chemistry NS and Physics and is chairperson of the science department. In her spare time she likes to play the quitar and piano and do needlework. "Ladies . . ."

ELLEN ZACKS

Miss Zacks attend El Camino Real High School in Woodland Hills and International College in Los Angeles. She has a master's degree in psychology. Miss Zacks, who has been at OLP five years, teachers Aerobic Dance and Exploration of Dance. When not teaching, she enjoys swimming, knitting and running. "Toes facing front."

Social Studies

There were no new staff members in the social studies department this year. Melinda Blade became the department chairperson and Sister Marianne Johnson, Lillian Valdes, Rose Fegley and Gretchen MacDonald returned to teach U.S. History, Government, Western Civilization, Psychology and Criminal Justice. An extracurricular activity offered was the Model United Nations club. OLP students participated with other schools as representatives in a simulation of the United Nations.

JACQUELINE CAFFEE

Mrs. Caffee graduated from the University of Wisconsin. She has bachelor's degrees in English and library science. She has been the librarian at OLP for four years. She enjoys gardening and reading. "Would you push your chairs in, please?"

SISTER MARY WAHOFF

Sister Mary is in her second stay at the Academy. She spent seven years at OLP, then left for 12 years. She returned in 1980 to run the bookstore and the attendance office. The bookstore is now Sister Mary's only official duty, but she also spends a lot of time serving as a substitute teacher. Sister Mary graduated from St. Louis University. She enjoys collecting stamps and always is looking for trades or donations.

COLLEEN PRANTIL

Mrs. Prantil has been OLP's attendance clerk for two years. Three of her daughters attend OLP and a fourth graduated last year. Mrs. Prantil graduated from St. Joseph High School in South Bend, Ind. She enjoys gardening and camping with her family. "What is your section, please?"

SISTER MARIE FRANCIS SCHROEPFER

OLP's treasurer for the past four years, Sister Marie Francis graduated from St. Mary's Academy in Los Angeles. She attended San Jose State and Mount St. Mary's College and has a bachelor's degree in mathematics. One of her favorite pastimes is playing football. "Let's see, there's one, two, three, four, five . . ."

Library and Media Center

Students and faculty members needing library or video materials often were aided by two very helpful women. Jacqueline Caffee kept OLP's library well organized, while Sister Ruth Garbani offered her vast knowledge of video recorders and film projectors in the media center.

CONCETTA PELUSO
and MARGARET SCHUM

Mrs. Peluso has been working at OLP since 1969. She began as a part-time helper in the attendance office. Shortly thereafter she became assistant secretary. Mrs. Schum came to the Academy in February of 1959 to work on a building fund for St. Joseph's Hall. In October of that year she became OLP's head secretary. She enjoys cooking, reading, camping and playing the piano.

MARIA KAHALA
and ELIA JIMENEZ

Mrs. Kahala came to OLP at the beginning of 1973. A year-and-a-half later, she was joined on the staff by her sister, Miss Jimenez. Often seen in unison, the two housekeepers are in charge of keeping the dust off of the many pieces of furniture spread around the OLP campus. They also clean the rest rooms. Mrs. Kahala likes to watch television, while Miss Jimenez enjoys sewing and shopping.

Staff

Imagine what OLP would be like without its wonderful staff. Overgrown lawns, dirty hallways, broken desks, miscounted money, missing students and stacks of unsorted papers would be normal sights. Fortunately, those sights don't exist at OLP, thanks to our gardeners, janitors, maintenance men, treasurer, bookstore supervisor, attendance officer and secretaries. Each one is a special part of what makes OLP such a great school.

LYNN MONROE

In his second year at OLP, Mr. Monroe is a graduate of Mount Miguel High School. He lives a block away from school with his wife and two children. As the school's maintenance director, Mr. Monroe keeps all the facilities in tip-top shape.

MIKE KING

Mr. King has been OLP's janitor for one year. He keeps the school shiny inside and out. Originally from Chicago, his favorite pastime is dancing.

MIKE LUDWIG
and RIGOBERTO NAVARRO

Mr. Ludwig and Mr. Navarro are in charge of the grounds and the pool. Mr. Ludwig has been at OLP for five years and is a graduate of St. Augustine. His hobbies include pyrotechnics and plants. Mr. Navarro has been working as a grounds keeper for eight years. Both men help keep the campus landscape beautiful.

CHAPTER TWO

RED RIDING HOOD MEETS A WOLF

One day Little Red Riding Hood was walking through the woods to her grandmother's house. Suddenly, a wolf stepped out in front of her.

"Who are you, little girl?" asked the wolf. "And what do you have in that basket?"

My name is Little Red Riding Hood and I'm bringing cookies and magazines to my poor sick granny who lives on the other side of the woods.

"Your poor, sick frail granny?" asked the wolf, licking his chops hungrily. "I know a short cut you can take that will get you to your granny's house in no time." And saying that, the wolf pointed to a path that really wouldn't take Little Red to her grandmother's house at all.

Happy to learn about what she thought was a short cut, Little Red foolishly took the path the wolf had indicated. As soon as she was out of sight, the wolf raced off in the proper direction in hopes of reaching her grandmother's house first.

Little Red Riding Hood walked for a very long time. Eventually she thought to herself, "The wolf said this was a short cut, but it certainly seems to be longer than the other path."

Tired and confused, she sat down to rest. Presently, a small rabbit hopped up to her. "You look puzzled," said the rabbit. "Are you lost?"

"Not exactly," replied Little Red. "You see, I was on the way to my grandmother's house and a wolf told me that this was a short cut —"

"The wolf!" exclaimed the rabbit. "You shouldn't have listened to him! He just wanted to get to your grandmother's house first and gobble her up. You're lucky he didn't eat you too!"

"Oh dear!" cried Little Red Riding Hood. "What should I do?"

"Hurry along this path," answered the rabbit. "Not far ahead is Villa Montemar. There you will find help."

"Oh, I do hope so!" replied Little Red, and she raced down the path, running so fast that the magazines flew out of her basket and scattered behind her.

Welcome Week helps frosh feel at home

OLP's Class of '87 met their big sisters and the rest of the student body during Welcome Week, Sept. 12-16.

Senior class President Molly Haselhorst explained that the event helps the incoming students feel at home in their new environment. "Welcome Week is a great idea because it's so scary to be a freshman," said Molly.

Each day the upper classes gave the new students a surprise during lunch. The seniors invited the freshmen up to North Terrace for refreshments and a swim in the pool, the juniors gave them a luau and the sophomores brought lunches for them.

"I thought Welcome Week was a sweet gesture," said freshman Michelle Mendez. "It made me feel like a part of the school." — By Maria Macaspac

Magazine Drive nets $46,000 for Academy

The students of OLP raised $46,000 for the Academy during the Magazine Drive. Chuck Erickson, Reader's Digest representative, encouraged spirit and support during assemblies.

The juniors won the class competition with 117 percent of their quota. They received a free day on North Terrace.

The school's top sales girls were Suzi Eppler, Helen Luibel and Julie Robinson, who won prizes of $100, $75 and $50.

The Double Quota Club and top sections 9s6, 11s3 and 11s4 were rewarded with a movie. The Double Quota Club members also received sunglasses, while the Quota Club members were given painter's caps.

Odd fashions abound during Spirit Week

Among the activities that got this year off to a great start was Spirit Week, held Sept. 26-30. Everyone voted to select themes for the five days. The students dressed as nerds and twins, wore fashions from the '50s and '60s, walked around in pajamas and showed their style.

On the latter day, many of the seniors wore togas. Their active participation in Spirit Week helped the Class of '84 win the Spirit Cup.

The fun-filled week ended with a performance by The Defendants, a modern-new wave band whose members included Saints seniors Dave Romero and Tulio Torrinello and 1983 graduate Mike Avalos. — By Maricela Greitzer

Saintsmen choose Christine as Queen

Christine Hilinski was named Saints' 1983 Homecoming Queen Oct. 21 during halftime of a game against San Diego at Mesa College.

The crowning concluded two long weeks of anticipation for Christine and her court — Betsy Clapp, Casey Cornick and Gina Rivera — which began when the candidates gave speeches at a Saints assembly on Oct. 7. The OLP senior class nominated the four members of the court. The Queen was elected by Saints' senior class and members of the varsity football team.

Before the game, the candidates dined with their escorts at the Reuben E. Lee. After the game, everyone danced to the sounds of NE1 in the Saints gym. — By Tammy Trevino

GAA carnival offers food, games, scares

The Girls' Athletic Association carnival, held Oct. 28, featured food, games and entertainment provided by school clubs, organizations and classes.

The refreshment stands offered a variety of foods, ranging from tacos and burritos made by members of the Spanish Honor Society, to hot dogs at the senior booth and pizza from the Villa Montemar staff.

One of the most popular attractions, especially with the children in attendance, was the Haunted House. The various scary characters inside were portrayed by members of the GAA.

Sharon Bitler, vice president of the GAA, felt the evening ran smoothly. "We received many compliments about how well-run the carnival was," said Sharon. — By Veronica Morrin

'Mattress' changes strangers to friends

"Once Upon A Mattress," the musical version of the fairy tale "The Princess and the Pea," was performed Dec. 1-4 in OLP's auditorium by students from the Academy and St. Augustine.

This was the second consecutive year OLP has put on a musical. Tom Rusch of Covenant Ark Theatre directed the play, which featured Cathy Bernens as Winnifred, Chris Putnam as Dauntless, Anna Whelan as Queen Aggravain, Aide Ripa as Lady Larken and Ruben Islas as Sir Harry.

During the two months the cast worked together they developed a strong sense of unity. "The cast started out as strangers and ended up a group of good friends," said Cathy Bernens. — By Donna Fitzgerald

Friendship theme of junior ring mass

The juniors had their class rings blessed during a morning ceremony Dec. 9 in the auditorium. The Mass was celebrated by the school's former chaplain, Father Patrick Grace. The readings were given by the junior class officers with a special meditation by President Judy Simanello.

Each junior received a red rose during the ceremony. Afterwards they were served a continental breakfast in the Lecture Hall by some of their freshmen little sisters.

"Friendship" was the theme for the day. "We chose that to be our theme," said Judy, "because there is a special closeness in our class. Friendship describes us best." — By Molly Sullivan

Margie reigns at '83 Miss OLP Ball

A number of changes were prominent at the 1983 Miss OLP Ball. Margie Hauber was crowned Miss OLP by last year's queen, Kathleen Manzer, ending five consecutive years of ASB presidents holding the title. Said Margie, "Being crowned Miss OLP was a wonderful shock and an honor."

A "Roaring" '20s" motif provided an interesting difference from the romantic themes of the past. The dance was held in the Don Room of the El Cortez Convention Center in downtown San Diego. "The Charleston" was chosen as the song to represent the '20s era.

Talent show offers chance to perform

Students received an opportunity to perform for their schoolmates during a talent show Jan. 27 in the auditorium.

The performances were given at a double assembly, with some of the eight acts being shown both times.

The show included such acts as senior Caroline Kielty playing an original composition on the piano, the Saints cheerleaders dancing to "Freakazoid" and freshman Jennifer Marano joining sophomores Stephane Asimacopoulos and Ann Marano in a skit called "Arabian Daze."

Caroline also sang "The Way We Were" for the Class of '84. "I wanted to dedicate a song to the seniors," said Caroline, "that would remind them of the memories we've shared here at OLP." — By Donna Fitzgerald

Spring Sing victory an '84 class effort

After three years of frustrated hopes, the Class of '84 won this year's Spring Sing. Director Michele Fournier attributed her classmates' success to the participation of all the seniors, not just those who were on the stage. "We finally did it," Michele said, "and it was because of the total dedication of our entire class."

The theme for the 14th annual Spring Sing was "A Salute to Our American Cities," with each of the four classes representing a major city in the United States.

Awards also were given to the highest scorers in the six categories used to determine the overall winner. The Class of '84 had the best singing, costumes and acting. Best choreography and staging went to the Class of '85 and the Class of '86 won the award for best script. — By Cathy Bernens

Parents join in on school activities

Some activities this year gave parents a chance to get involved with the school. The first event was the Sunset Buffet on Sept. 17. It featured a Mass on Circle Drive, followed by a Mexican-style dinner on North Terrace.

On Back-to-School Night, held Sept. 28, parents visited the classes of their daughters and listened to short presentations by the teachers.

Fathers and their senior daughters enjoyed a special evening on Feb. 25, when the Father-Daughter Dance was held at Cafe del Rey Moro in Balboa Park. Besides dinner and dancing, a slide show was presented featuring pictures of the dads and daughters. — By Michelle Rover

ASB leaders provide varied assemblies

Throughout the course of the year, the Associated Student Body officers put together many interesting programs, including guest speakers such as Eric Sievers of the Chargers and Norma Phillips from Mothers Against Drunk Driving. Other assemblies included a faculty versus students volleyball game and a performance by Free Fare, a band from Florida.

The ASB was led by President Marcia Holmberg. The other officers were Vice President Margie Hauber, Secretary Lauren MacArthur, Treasurer Michele Schiele and Commissioner of Communications and Graphics Ann Hoff. The latter position replaced the office of ASB artist, which was eliminated along with the office of commissioner of clubs. — By Kim Shea

New group organizes religious services

A new organization, Campus Ministry, was responsible for religious services this year. Directed by Campus Minister Joan Witz, members of the organization coordinated such activities as school liturgies and retreats.

The Altar Girls' Club was renamed the Mass Ministry Team and its members served at school Masses. A Retreat Team organized off-campus retreats, which were offered to each of the classes for the first time.

"I found that being on the retreat team allowed me to share my feelings, experiences and talents with people other than my classmates," said senior Marie Demers. "In return I learned from other people and grew in God's love." — By Sandra Cumiskey

Saints cheerleaders 'Make It Great!'

"Make It Great!" was the motto of the Saints varsity cheerleaders. They adopted the slogan at a cheer camp they attended during the summer.

"It was the theme for the entire camp," explained head cheerleader Christine Hilinski, "but we chose to make it our personal motto."

Many hours of hard work and practice paid off with a good showing by the cheerleaders, who made it a point to attend as many different games as possible to boost school enthusiasm.

"We wanted to spread spirit at all of the sports events, not just at football and basketball games," said Michele Grogan, the Saints Angel. — By Cathy Boucher

JV, frosh squads boost crowd spirit

Cheering for Saints was a job performed enthusiastically this year by the junior varsity and freshmen cheerleaders. The squads showed a great deal of unity as they supported their teams at football and basketball games. Their spirit and energy helped boost crowd responses at the sports events.

Much of the squad members' free time was spent practicing routines, but their dedication brought them personal satisfaction. "Being a cheerleader has been demanding," said freshman head cheerleader Erin Cornick, "but it has been well worth it."

Oracle maintains its excellent standards

The Oracle continued to be one of the finest high school newspapers in the United States, under the guidance of fourth-year adviser David Matt Green.

In October the staff learned that the 1982-83 issues of the paper had come within 15 points of receiving a prestigious International First Place award in the annual Quill and Scroll Society Newsmedia Evaluation.

In March The Oracle was judged third best in the San Diego County Journalism Education Association's yearly "Excellence in Journalism" rankings, which were determined by local newspaper professionals.

'84 Villa Montemar is literary effort

When David Matt Green became adviser for the 1984 Villa Montemar, he hoped to accomplish two things. "I wanted to create a more literary yearbook," Green said, "and to make the people doing the work less anonymous."

With that in mind, Copy Editor Patty Deyling and Green wrote a fairy tale that continues throughout the book. Art Editor Ann Hoff illustrated the story.

Other important tasks were directed by Photography Editor Kim Shea, who printed a major portion of the photos, Layout Editor Karen McCashen, Index Editor Molly Sullivan and Business Manager Maria Macaspac.

SNOW WHITE RUNS FROM DANGER

At the same time, in another part of the forest, Snow White was walking through the woods with a royal huntsman. The huntsman had been ordered by the Queen, Snow White's wicked and vain stepmother, to kill the girl because she was the most beautiful in all the land.

Unaware of the danger, Snow White was happily gathering flowers and playing with the forest animals.

When the huntsman saw how kind and gentle the lovely princess was, he could not bring himself to perform the terrible deed the Queen had commanded.

"You must run away," the huntsman cried to Snow White, "for your evil stepmother has ordered me to kill you because you are more beautiful than she."

Horrified, Snow White gasped, "But where shall I go?"

"Run to the land of Villa Montemar," he answered. "There you will find safety."

Snow White thanked the huntsman, then ran away as fast as her legs could carry her. The forest grew darker and she became more terrified. She ran until she could run no more, then collapsed at the edge of a small clearing.

It was there that she was discovered by some girls from a cross country team. They found her frightened and sobbing. One of the runners asked her what was wrong.

Snow White told them her story, then another of the runners pointed and said, "If you travel in that direction, you will find Villa Montemar and its safety."

Snow White thanked the seven runners and set off in the direction the girl had pointed, thinking as she went, "My, they certainly were short."

Volleyball team just misses CIF playoffs

OLP's volleyball team almost made it to the CIF playoffs for the second consecutive year, despite having to adjust to a new coach.

The team finished the season tied for second place, then lost a rematch with Crawford to determine the Central League's other representative beside champion Christian High.

Led by captain Caroline Kielty and co-captain Anita Tennies, the team finished with a league record of six wins and four losses. Caroline was named to the all-league first team for the second year in a row.

The team's new coach, Shelley McKenney, replaced Pauline Carbone, who decided to take a break after 12 years of coaching. "It was a great learning experience for me," said Coach McKenney. "I'm looking forward to next year." — By Maria Macaspac

Tennis team looks toward next season

The tennis team, led by captain Mary Anne Paulls, ended the year with a 3-14 ecord. They didn't have a winning season, but according to Coach Lillian 'aldes, "The team as a whole showed great improvement this year."

The top doubles team was made up of frehsmen Kathy Hegardt and Amy Thomas, who qualified for the CIF individual playoffs. The number two doubles eam was senior Margie Hauber and junior Lynn Zarro. Liz McIver, another unior, was the number one singles player.

"The team demonstrated good sportsmanship and spirit," said Coach Valdes. "Continued improvement next year is our goal."

Because there were only two seniors on the team, many experienced players will be returning, so prospects look bright for next year's team. — By Maricela Greitzer

New OLP sport does well in its first year

Cross country was a new sport at the Academy this year. A team consisting of one senior, a junior, three sophomores and a freshman ran with the Saints cross country team.

Under the direction of Saints cross country Coach Jeremiah Downey, the girls finished with a 2-2 record, placing them fourth in the Central League. Their two victories included a 25-30 win over Hoover in their first race ever.

The team made it to the CIF Preliminaries. They finished seventh, but did not qualify to go on to the CIF Finals.

Soccer team undefeated in Central League

The soccer team went undefeated in its first season in the Central League, winning all nine games it played and the league championship. The team then went to the CIF playoffs, but lost the first game to Southwest High by a score of 2-0.

This was the second year OLP had a soccer team. Leo Willetts formed the team last year to play in a recreational league and has been its coach both seasons. Coach Willetts was pleased with the efforts of his players. "I wish all my teams were this enthusiastic," he said. "I really enjoyed coaching this team."

OLP assembled a track team for a second year of Central League compe tion. The athletes were led by Coach Lenae Bourbeau, who turned to Sain coaches Mike Healy, Rick Stewart, Jeremiah Downey and Eric Querin to i struct the girls in the finer points of track and field.

Over 25 girls participated on the team this year. Their schedule include meets against the five other members of the Central League, as well as no league meets with University and Marian and a number of county-wide rela events.

Maria Macaspac, who broke the school's discus record early in the seaso and then broke her own record several times, said, "Track was a lot of fun and kept me in shape. I wish I had joined the team a year ago." — By Cathi Boucher

CHAPTER FOUR

WINNIFRED TRIES FOR A PRINCE

Meanwhile, Winnifred, who had grown into quite an outspoken lass, burst into the throne room of a nearby castle and shouted, "I'm here to marry the prince!"

"What?!" cried the Queen of the castle, leaping to her feet.

"I've heard of the test to find a princess for your son," replied Winnifred, "and I'm here to prove that I'm the one you seek. So when do we begin?"

The Queen glared icily at the girl. "We will give you the test when I am good and ready," she snapped, "and not a millisecond sooner. The she turned to a servant and said, "Give her a room. We will discuss it tomorrow."

After Winnifred was gone, the Queen turned to her court and gleamed. "The test has already begun," she said. "In her room she will find a bed with many mattresses. Beneath them is hidden a golden ring. Only a true princess will be delicate enough to know it is there."

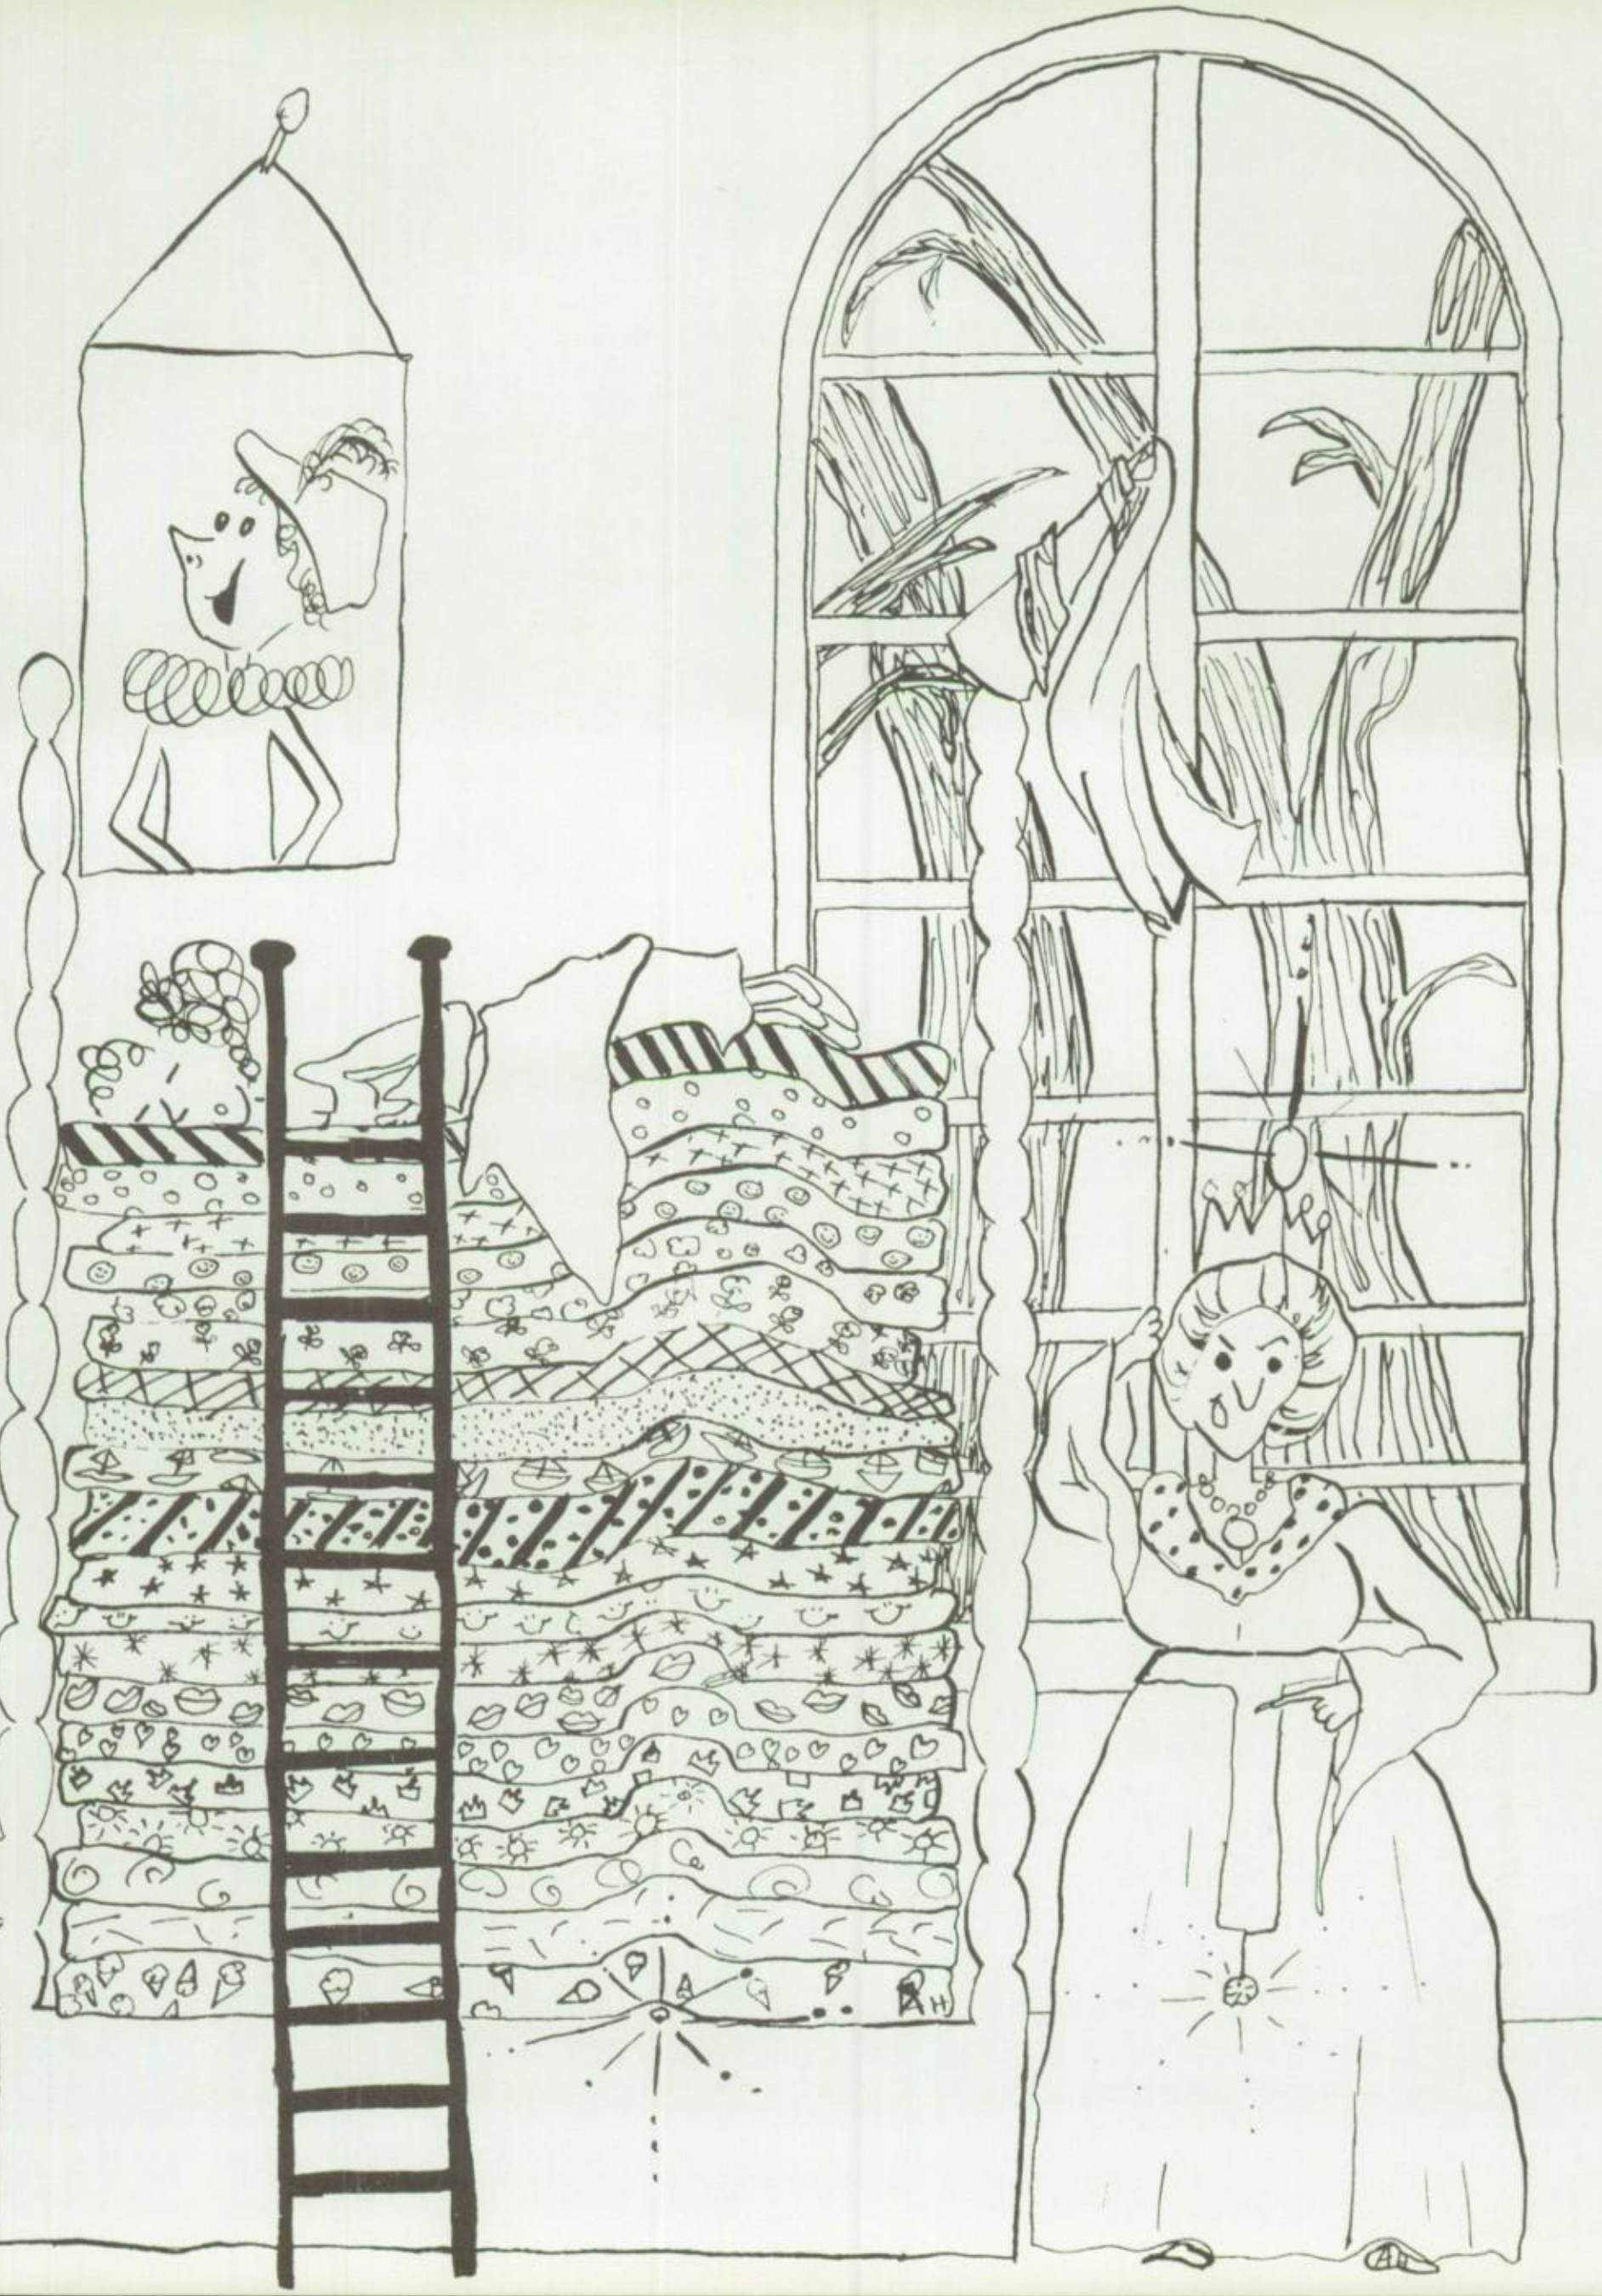
The next morning the Queen sent for Winnifred and asked how she had slept.

"Slept?" said Winnifred indignantly. "Why, I didn't sleep a wink! There was a horrible lump in my bed and I tossed and turned all night. I finally found this ring under my mattress just a few minutes ago."

The Queen's jaw dropped. She was crushed. Grudgingly she admitted that anyone so sensitive was probably a real princess, but she was not about to give up so easily. "There is one more test you must pass," she told Winnifred. "You must find the legendary land of Villa Montemar and give the ring you hold to the Queen of that land."

And so saying, she smiled at her own cunning, for she believed that the magical land was only a figment of someone's imagination.

"Very well," said Winnifred. "I'll do it." And with that, she left the castle and went along the road into the forest.



Freshmen launch dreams

For the freshmen, being in the auditorium that first day meant the beginning of our future hopes and long-term dreams. What began to unfold that day was the spirit that would make us special.

From nervous, unsure and eager freshmen, we've come to be the crazy and rowdy freshmen, feeling strong and comfortable while each day strengthening the special bonds of friendship we've felt, growing together as one, as a whole, as the Class of '87.

Striving for that goal has meant trying a little harder, working with unity and feeling love in the greatest sense of the word. This love generates feelings of warmth, happiness, pride and a sense of belonging and community, whether it be through a smile, a courteous action or a hug.

Caring, respectful, friendly, spirited, eager, talented, educated, aware and encouraged are how we have felt during our first year at the Academy. We have created dreams of the special times we have shared at OLP that will forever linger in our memories. — By Carla daLuz

Smurfs offer diversity

We are the sophomores, a highly motivated combination of preppies, mods, rockers and even some normal people. Each individual is distinctly different, which makes our class distinguished. We are energetic and spirited, even when the going gets tough.

The past two years have brought us close, like a family. We are thankful OLP has given us an atmosphere which enables us to create that bond. We share it not only amongst ourselves, but with the other classes as well.

We are a special group, bursting with enthusiasm, love and affection. We have learned that success doesn't only come to individuals, but also pertains to communities. A community involves an unselfish giving of one's self to others for the good of that group. Our class is full of people who are ready to lend an ear or a hand to anyone in need.

We cry and laugh together. We've grown used to each other's flaws and talents. We truly have built a community that will endure throughout our next two years and hopefully for many years thereafter. — By Melinda Macaspac

Juniors have panache

The juniors are "the class of entertainers." Never before has a single class possessed so many girls with such talent and vitality. From tap to jazz, ballet to tumbling, the juniors have the most dazzling feet ever!

At assemblies one can always tell where the juniors are sitting, because when we wear our vibrant greens proudly and cheer madly, our spirit shoots into the sky like fireworks for everyone to see.

The Class of '85 also has a leadership quality that stands out among all others. We welcomed our little sisters to high school and showered them with what we are known for best — friendliness, consideration, kindness and good humor.

When we received our class rings it brought a greater sense of unity to the class and gave us even more spirit and togetherness than before.

Most of all, the juniors know how to kick back, relax and have a good time. We are a class with real panache.

CHAPTER FIVE

FATE UNITES THE TRAVELERS

As fate would have it, the three girls came out of the forest at the same time and met at a crossroads. Winnifred immediately addressed the others, asking, "Do either of you know the way to Villa Montemar?"

"Villa Montemar!" exclaimed Snow White. "Why, that's where I'm going!"

"I'm looking for that enchanted land, too," said Little Red Riding Hood. "My grandmother is in terrible danger from a wolf and I've got to get to Villa Montemar to find help. Why are the two of you going there?"

"I have to return this ring to the Queen of the land," answered Winnifred, "so that I can marry the Prince."

"I have to go there to find safety from my wicked stepmother," said Snow White. "She has ordered a huntsman to kill me."

"Oh dear!" said Little Red. "Then we must hurry! But how do we know which road leads to Villa Montemar?"

"Well, it isn't in any of the directions we came from," said Winnifred, "and there's only one road left, so that must be the right one."

"Let's travel together!" suggested Snow White. The others agreed, so they all set off down the road.

They hadn't walked very far when the path they were following led them to the bottom of a hill. At the very top they could see the flags of a castle blowing in the wind.

"Maybe that's Villa Montemar!" cried Little Red Riding Hood.

Winnifred rolled her eyes. "That's what the sign says," she pointed out, indicating a wooden marker on a nearby tree.

"Well, what are we waiting for?" asked Snow White.

And with that, the trio started up the winding path to the enchanted land of Villa Montemar.

TO VILLA Montemar

Chiquitas have appeal

The most obvious characteristic of the Class of '84 is our friendliness. Warm and considerate, we work hard to promote friendly relations with the other classes. We are famous for our fun-loving individuals who thrive on festivities. Any occasion is reason enough for the seniors to have a party.

The Class of '84 also is very adaptable. During the past four years many changes have taken place at the Academy, and although we have not always accepted the changes readily, we have been willing to give new ideas a chance and often have learned and grown from these experiences.

Since the seniors are so varied, it is surprising that we often are the most unified class. We work hard together to make activities successful. We always enthusiastically do our best for the good of the entire school. — By Molly Haselhorst

CHAPTER SIX

VILLA MONTEMAR AND HOME AGAIN

When the three companions reached the top of the hill, they were met by a servant.

"Her majesty, the Queen of Villa Montemar, summons you to her palace," said the messenger. "She wishes to inquire about your travels."

The girls followed the messenger to a grand palace, with guards at the door and a great many servants inside. There, in a magnificent room, on a very tall throne, was seated the Queen.

"Who are you," she asked, "and what brings you to Villa Montemar?"

"Well, it started like this . . ." began Little Red Riding Hood. Then Snow White told part of the story and finally Winnifred finished the tale with, "And because we all remember hearing songs about the magic land of Villa Montemar, we believed that if we came here our problems all would be solved. Oh, and here is your ring."

The Queen thanked Winnifred, then smiled at each of the girls. "Villa Montemar is indeed an enchanted land," the Queen said, "and because it is such a magical place, if each of you thinks of your heart's desire and then walks through that doorway over there, your wish will come true."

The girls thanked the Queen for her kindness, then turned excitedly toward the doorway. Little Red Riding Hood bid her new friends goodbye, then stepped through the doorway. Instantly she was beside her grandmother's cottage. To her great joy she found that her grandmother was safe and that the wolf had fallen into a hunter's snare.

Next, Snow White walked through the doorway. Right away she was home at the castle, where she learned that her father had banished her stepmother from the kingdom because of her wickedness.

Last of all, Winnifred stepped through the doorway. Immediately she found herself back at the castle where she had first met her prince, and since she had completed her task, she and the prince soon were married.

So you see, just as the Queen of Villa Montemar promised, the girls' wishes did come true, and since it would not be a real fairy tale otherwise, they all lived happily ever after.

The story behind our story:

Now that you have finished "Tales of Villa Montemar," we would like to tell you the story behind our story.

In May of 1983 we decided to give you, the students of Our Lady of Peace, a yearbook worth the money you would be paying for it. To us that meant a book that would be literary, creative, professional, but most importantly, unique.

We chose a fairy tale theme and introduced the idea to some of our staff at a meeting held near the end of the last summer. The other members heard about it during our first class in September.

The next few weeks were filled with daily planning sessions. Everyone on the staff contributed ideas and we worked so well as a team that today none of us really is sure who thought of what.

Speaking of the staff, we had no trouble whatsoever from any of them and we want each one to know that we appreciate the huge effort and sacrifice they contributed to this yearbook. Without their work, you would just have flipped through a great many blank pages.

We did, however, have our share of problems. For instance, we had to work in a darkroom so tiny that only one person could use it at a time. That slowed our progress considerably and made it difficult to teach darkroom skills, even though we had plenty of people who wanted to learn them.

Eventually, we had to choose between continuing to produce quality photographs at our own pace, or sending them out to a photo lab that would do them faster, but probably not as well.

Partly because we considered the task of producing a yearbook to be a learning experience for the staff, but mostly because we believed that each of you deserved more for your money and your memories than you usually have received, we chose quality and sacrificed time. That decision met with opposition, but we stood by it and still believe we were right.

Being part of the Villa Montemar staff did give each of our members a chance to learn some things. Not all of those things were related to yearbook production, however. We also received some valuable lessons about ourselves and the people around us. We think those lessons will help us in our future endeavors.

By the time you read this, we three will have completed our final year at the Academy. We enjoyed the work each of us put into "Tales of Villa Montemar" and are proud of what we helped create. We believe the 1983-84 Villa Montemar staff has given you and the Academy of Our Lady of Peace something special, something unique.

With help from:

We want to thank the many people who assisted with the creation of "Tales of Villa Montemar."

Among them are those who helped in one way or another with the photography, including Yolanda Avila, Jesse Macias, Jorge Medina and especially their leader Victor Avila; Darryl Obayashi and Busco-Nestor Studio; Tom Bates and Marcia Holmberg of The Oracle; and Michele Trevino.

The Oracle's Laurie Howe, who was practically a member of our staff, contributed critiques of our writing and also provided an important photo for page 56.

Jean Deyling helped with the plotting of our fairy tale and the design and fabrication of the costumes worn by the outstanding seniors.

Many parents were helpful and supportive, especially Jean and Jim Deyling, Chris and Mike Shea, Helen and Bud Green, and Mariana and Richard Sullivan, all of whom allowed us to work in their homes when we were not permitted to work at school.

The senior class raised the money to pay for the color section by selling patron ads, with Jackie Garcia leading the way at $150.

Other people who provided help or moral support included Sonya Dembinski, Yvette Pourciau, Bart Provo and everyone who loaned us pieces of costumes.

Hopefully, we haven't forgotten anyone. If we have, we apologize. Thank you, one and all!
